CHICAGO ROBBERS ESCAPE AFTER A DARING HOLDUP

Grand Trunk Local Flagged Near Evergreen Park, On Fringe Of Windy City, By Six Men Who Blast Way Into Mail Car, Subdue Guards And Flee With Large Amount To Meet Payrolls—Many Shots Fired; None Hurt.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25—(By the Associated Press)—Half a dozen masked robbers, using wild west tactics, held up a Grand Trunk local mail and passenger train on the fringe of Chicago today, terrorized seventy-five passengers and train employes, blasted a mail car and escaped with at least $133,000, and possibly more.

The holdup was staged at the identical spot where a $135,000 train robbery was executed a year ago, and the police believe the same gang executed the second coup.

One of the robbers boarded the train, a local between Chicago and Port Huron, Mich., at Chicago with a ticket for Evergreen Park, about twelve miles from the downtown station. The train stopped at the flag stop and this robber got off. A quarter of a mile down the track five men wearing black masks and khaki coveralls flagged the train, consisting of two coaches, two baggage cars and a mail car.

As the train ground to a stop part of the robbers, armed with shotguns and pistols, invaded the coaches, firing promiscuously and terrorizing the passengers.

Guards Subdued.

Others of the band rounded up the train crew and herded the crew with the passengers where part of the robbers stood guard. Two of the gang, carrying explosives, went to the mail car which was locked. They set a charge of explosive in the vestibule of the mail car, blowing it down, then entered and subdued two mail clerks and two government agents guarding the money.

One of the clerks was struck over the head when he attempted to resist. Otherwise no one was injured, although more than fifty shots were fired. The two men with the explosive, after turning over the guards to those watching the passengers, blasted the mail car safe and gathered up two mail pouches containing the cash, consigned to two Harvey banks, where it was to be used to meet the payrolls of industries there.

The robbers, as soon as they had gathered up the cash, called to their

ITALIAN BREAK WITH AUSTRIA SEEMS NEAR

Envoy Leaving Vienna For Rome to Confer With Mussolini.

SEIPEL CONTENDS ITALY 'AGGRESSOR'

Austrians Complain Of Italian Treatment Of Germans in Tyrol.

VIENNA, Feb. 25—(By the Associated Press.) — Giacinto Auriti, Italian minister to Austria, is leaving for Rome tonight to confer with Premier Mussolini respecting Austria's continued complaints regarding Italian treatment of German subjects in the Tyrol.

His departure has already given rise to rumors of an impending break in relations between Italy and Austria.

The Tyrolese deputies here insist Austria cannot recede from the firm stand already taken by Chancellor Seipel relative to "Italian aggression."

Recall Seems Imminent.

ROME, Feb. 25 —(AP)—Although official confirmation is lacking Polo di Roma today says the recall of Italian Minister Auriti from Vienna "appears imminent."

The paper is inclined to attribute the recent discussions in the Austrian parliament protesting the treatment of German residents in the Tyrolese province annexed to Italy to internal party politics.

Chancellor Seipel of Austria, it says, "knows perfectly well the natural Italian frontiers are inviolable, that nobody can touch them, no force throughout the earth can modify them, and knows equally well Italy's treatment of German-speaking populations is as equable, just and humane as could be desired. There are only a few scoundrels who strain themselves to keep alive fantastic irredentism . . . but he knows another thing full well, the government of Mussolini will never permit in any case disturbance of the peace and tranquility of the Italian people. . . .

Makes Self Understood.

"Mussolini is a man to make himself understood even by those who say they don't understand Italian."

Il Messaggero is equally positive that Italy will not tolerate any "interference" with her internal policy. The paper remarks that Chancellor Seipel passes as the restorer of Austria, but reminds him that restoration from the ruin menacing her after the fall of the Hapsburg empire would have been impossible without Italy's generosity.

Italy, the paper says, does not expect gratitude from Austria any more than from Serbia, for whom was saved an army destined to destruction.

HOLE STOVE IN RUSSIAN BOAT

Only Survivor Found Dies Soon After Taken From Water.

DUNGENESS, Kent, England, Feb. 25— (By the Associated Press) —With no trace found of any survivors of the Italian steamer Alcantara, which was in collision with the Russian training ship Tovarisch in the fog-enshrouded strait of Dover yesterday, the Kentish coast was beginning to worry about the fate of the Tovarisch today.

Although the Tovarisch was reported to be trying to make Southampton there is considerable anxiety as to her present whereabouts since no wireless has been received from her since the S. O. S. calls were sent out after the collision. The fear is expressed in some quarters that the Russian ship may have sunk with the 100 cadets she carried. Reports to shipping and other agencies, however, afford no confirmation for such fears.

Lifeboats from here and Rye which went to the scene of the disaster returned this morning after a nightlong and futile search.

Difficult Search.

There is thought to be a chance that some survivors of the Alcantara may be aboard the British steamer Baron Douglas, which is said to have been in the vicinity of the collision and which has not yet reported to any point. Motorboats which set out after the S. O. S. returned and their crews described the difficult and slow search they had made among the floating timbers and wreckage in the thick

SIXTEEN CARS FREIGHT BURN ON BURLINGTON

Derailment Occurs Saturday Morning Near Table Rock.

NO ONE INJURED IN BAD ACCIDENT

Believed Loss Will Run Into Thousands of Dollars.

Sixteen cars of a southbound Burlington freight No. 80 were derailed early Saturday morning between Appleton and Table Rock. Fire broke out among the overturned cars almost immediately and twelve of them were completely destroyed. The cause of the derailment is not known. It is believed the loss will run into thousands of dollars. No one was injured.

The locomotive and the cars immediately following remained on the rails, as did the caboose and the cars for some lengths in front of it. Those leaving the track were in the middle of the train and members of the crew are unable to say what caused them to do so.

Heat rs Believed Cause.

Heaters in the refrigerator cars are supposed to have been responsible for the fire, which was visible for a long distance. Section crews from Pawnee, Elk Creek and Table Rock assisted in clearing away the wreck, but the heat from the smoldering ruins was so intense as to hinder the men to some extent.

The Table Rock-Lincoln train, No. 19, was this morning routed by way of Wymore.

No. 80 is a north Pacific time freight and the fastest freight train being run by the Burlington. It makes no local stops and carries perishables from the coast to Kansas City and St. Louis. The derailed cars contained sugar, apples, potatoes, wheat, corn and merchandise.

Wreckers from Lincoln and Wymore were rushed to the scene. All traffic over the line was blocked, but was moving by the middle of the afternoon.

DELONG HONORED BY FARM BUREAU

Two Hundred Farmers at Dinner Given For Extension Agent.

A. H. DeLong, county extension agent of Otoe county, was honored Friday evening by Otoe county farmers at a dinner given for him in the Methodist church at Syracuse. He has completed ten years of continuous service as the county agent of that county.

Two hundred people attended the dinner. The size of the banquet room determined the size of the group. Otoe county has seventeen precincts and each precinct was allotted but eleven tickets.

Y. R. Hedges presided at the dinner. He has been the president of the Otoe County Farm bureau since it was organized ten years ago. Mrs. S. P. Davis, well known Otoe county farmer's wife, had charge of the arrangements for the banquet.

Mr. Hedges called upon F. C. Waller, who has been the secretary of the bureau for ten years, to tell how they hired Mr. DeLong and why they have kept him so long. Mr. Waller and Mr. Hedges had some interesting facts to tell. Mrs. J. O. Freshour spoke fo rthe ladies and thanked Mr. DeLong for the help he has been to the women and girls of that county through women's and girls' club work.

Judge Radke of Tecumseh gave the principal talk of the evening praising Mr. DeLong in his present work with the soil and livestock problems of the county and with the leaders of progressive farming here.

Miss Mary Allen Brown, Miss Jessie Greene, H. G. Gould, and G. R. Boomer of the extension service at Lincoln each added their bit to the history and the praise of Mr. DeLong's work in the past ten years. It was brought out that three counties that started extension work in the spring of 1918 still have the same agents—Otoe, Cass, and Douglas counties. L. R. Snipes is the agent in Cass county and E. G. Maxwell the agent in Douglas county.

Senator Banning of Cass county spoke briefly in praise of all the things that farmers can get from the agricultural college at Lincoln through the county farm bureau organizations and the county extension agents such as Mr. DeLong and Mr. Snipes.

Glen Buck of the Nebraska Farmer mentioned the fact that a county with a good county agent soon gets a reputation as a center of progressive farming.

County Agents Snipes of Cass, Purbaugh of Lancaster, and Huston of Johnson counties were present to pay their respects to their fellow worker and to say that he had always co-operated in matters of interlcounty interest.

PROBERS HEAR SON OF TEAPOT OIL CASE EXILE

Denver Man, Called Before Senate Investigators, Declares He Does Not Believe Parent, Now In Europe, Guilty Of Gross Misconduct In Continental Company Deal—Made $750,000 Out Of Mysterious Firm.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(By the Associated Press)—Loyally defending his father, a missing witness in the Teapot Dome case, Myron K. Blackmer of Denver told the senate oil committee today that he did not believe H. L. Blackmer had been guilty of any gross misconduct in the Continental Trading Co. deal, through which millions in profits were realized through a quick purchase and sale of American oil.

The younger Blackmer said his father, who was head of the Midwest Refining Co., had not told him much about the Continental, in which he was a prime mover, but that he had advised him to keep the matter confidential. The elder Blackmer, he said, had not decided whether to keep the $750,000 profits he realized, as there was a possibility that the Midwest might seek to recover them.

Again and again the committee members pressed the younger Blackmer for an expression of opinion as to his father's conduct in refusing to return to the United States to testify in the oil trials, but no derogatory suggestion came from the witness.

"I'm my father's son," he said at one point. "I don't think the committee ought to ask me what my speculations have been. I love my father and I owe loyalty to him. I don't think it's fair for you to ask me that."

This declaration was brought out by a question whether the witness had ever thought the elder Blackmers' absence from the United States was more to protect others than himself.

The younger Blackmer said his father had told him he intended to remain away from the United States because he did not want to "mix up" in the oil controversy.

PUBLISHERS ADOPT THE AUDIT SYSTEM

Press Association Approves Plan For Weekly Newspapers of the State.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Feb. 25—(AP)—What is regarded by many as an outstanding forward step of Nebraska press association at its meeting here today was the action in adopting the A. B. C. audit system for the weekly newspapers of the state. It is entirely voluntary as to individual newspapers, but the plan war ardently advocated and will be put into practice at once by a large number.

Gayle C. Walker, of the school of journalism addressed the convention on "our school of journalism." He said that of 27 men holding certificates from school 24 are actively engaged in newspaper work and of 31 women 15 are employed.

Two Lincoln Girls And Youth Held For Taking Rented Car

Three young people said to be going under the names of "Joe Patterson, Ruth Johnson and Gladys Castle" have been arrested at Kansas City and are being held for Lincoln officers on the charge of larceny as bailee. It is alleged that they rented a car February 16 from Elmer Munson and failed to return it. Officers here were informed that the three were caught in possession of the auto. The two girls refuse to sign waivers of extradition but the youth is willing to return.

Affidavits Filed By Maxine George Denying Charges

Affidavits conflicting with those filed by the Missouri Pacific railroad last week in the Maxine George case were filed in Federal court Friday afternoon. Miss George recently was awarded $7,535 for injuries received when she fell on the icy platform of a car.

The affidavits filed by her attorney are in answer to those filed by the railroad, which is asking for a new trial on the grounds that Maxine is not a resident of Nebraska, and that she suffered no permanent injury.

Five Lincoln doctors testify as to her lameness and the extent of her injury. She was examined by them this week.

The motion for a new trial was argued before Federal Judge T. C. Munger Saturday.

COOLIDGE FOR NAVY INCREASE

President Says House Bill Start in Right Direction.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—President Coolidge is of the opinion that the bill approved by the house naval committee for sixteen new warships does not meet what the navy considers its needs, but he looks upon the measures as a start in the right direction.

The bill, given unanimous committee action, calls for fifteen cruisers and one airplane carrier, as against a total of seventy-one ships recommended by Secretary Wilbur. It is the president's view however, that very likely no more than sixteen ships could be begun during the next five years, and in that time arrangements could be made for the additional craft if still desired.

One feature of the bill, prescribing a time limit for completing construction, does not meet the president's approval, but he understands that the stipulation would not be binding upon any future congress which might revise that provision and draft an altogether new building program.

In the opinion of Speaker Longworth of the house the pending bill is the "very best that we could get." He said it would have been almost impossible to have the naval committee agree on the Wilbur plan for seventy-one ships. He expects the bill to reach the house proper about the middle of next month and he predicted that it would be passed.

Longworth commended the committee action in abandoning for the present the destroyer leaders and submarines proposed in favor of the cruisers and welcomed the fixing of a construction time limit as assurance that by the end of six years the country will have a real navy rather than a "paper fleet."

WILLIS-HOOVER FIGHT ASSURED

Both Candidates File in Ohio on Last Possible Day.

Woman and Negro Found On Delegate Slate of Each.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 25—(AP)—Filing of their formal declarations of candidacy for president with the secretary of state and the entrance of Senator Frank B. O. Willis and Secretary Herbert Hoover in the Ohio presidential preference primary April 24, today gave impetus to the battle for control of Ohio's fifty-one delegates to the republican national convention.

After days of close guarding of their plans, both candidates came forward yesterday, the last possible day for doing so, with their formal declarations of candidacy and a complete list of candidates for delegates.

The action assures a fight to a finish. Political observers predict the largest republican vote in Ohio's history in the forthcoming primary, with both camps getting out all available votes in an attempt to secure control of the Ohio delegation to the Kansas City convention. The vote in the preferential contest will not be binding on delegates, but it assures a spirited campaign for popular endorsement.

Both Choose Woman.

Col. Carmi A. Thompson, Cleveland, Senator Willis' campaign manager, heads the senator's slate for seven delegates-at-large, while Hoover's list is headed by Congressman Theodore E. Burton, also of Cleveland. Both candidates are represented by a woman on the big seven list, with the senator choosing Mrs. Wilma Sinclair Leven of Steubenville and the secretary selecting Mrs. Hugh Clark, also of Steubenville.

The Rev. E. W. B. Curry, negro Baptist minister at Springfield, is on the Hoover list, and A. Lee Beatty, negro, former assistant United States attorney at Cincinnati, is on Willis' slate.

The other four Willis candidates for delegates-at-large are United States senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs; E. W. Edwards, Cincinnati manufacturer; Col. Edward Wollrath, Bucyrus, Spanish and World war veteran, and Fred W. Warner, Marion, state republican central committee chairman.

The remainder of the Hoover candidates for delegate-at-large are Robert A. Taft, Cincinnati, son of the chief justice of the United States Supreme court; W. W. Farnsworth, Waterville; Edward Orton, jr., Columbus, and Frank Brown, Chillicothe.

YELLOW THREAD BRINGS VERDICT

Women Jurors Admit Influenced Decision Against Dr. McMillan.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25—(AP) — A strand of yellow thread woven into two pieces of canvas in such a way that it attracted the eye of eight women jurors, helped to convict Dr. Charles M. McMillan of the "sack murder" of his employer Mrs. Amelia Appleby, wealthy widow.

The jury yesterday found the former Colorado, Tex., physician guilty of first degree murder and recommended life imprisonment.

The yellow thread ran through the canvas which was found wrapped about the wealthy widow's body, and through a similar piece discovered in the slain woman's automobile in her garage. Six of the eight women on the jury agreed that the yellow thread had been one of the strongest links in the chain of circumstances upon which they convicted McMillan.

"It was the same thread sewn in both pieces," they said after the trial ended. "It satisfied us that the woman was killed in her own home, and that Dr. McMillan did the killing."

"It didn't surprise me much" the convicted man stammered, in commenting on the verdict. He was grave, with the same stoical indifference he maintained throughout his trial, in which he admitted forging the "Appleby will," which bequeathed to him the entire estate of his victim. The state declared the forged will was the evidence of the doctor's murder motive.

Under the California law the jury's recommendation makes the sentencing set for next Tuesday morning, but a formality.

DAMAGING FIRE AT WILSONVILLE

Business Houses Burned With Loss Estimated At $85,000.

BEAVER CITY, Neb., Feb. 25—(AP)—The south portion of the business section of Wilsonville, was burned Friday afternoon, entailing a loss of approximately $85,000.

The buildings burned were the Home State bank, Dryden pharmacy, W. H. Thompson general store, Cline hardware store and the telephone office.

The origin of the blaze is unknown. Portions of stock and fixtures were saved from some of the business houses. Wilsonville is without facilities for fighting fire.

WOMAN, 70, AND BOY, 11, STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILES

Two persons, an 11 year old boy, and a 70 year old woman, were slightly injured when they were struck by automobiles Friday evening. Bernard Dudgeon, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dudgeon, 1823 Garfield street, received a severe head laceration when the bicycle he was riding out of a driveway in front of his home collided with a car driven by F. D. McDermott, 3621 Everett street. He was feeling better Saturday morning.

Miss Hanna Bevard, 70, of 1447 F street, was injured when a car driven by Orville Higgins, 1136 Virginia street, struck her as she was crossing the intersection at Fourteenth and O streets shortly after 7 o'clock. She sustained a dislocated ankle and body bruises but spent a restful night at Bryan Memorial hospital where she was taken in Umberger's ambulance.

Max Hart, Good American No More Hoods. As the Angel Writes. Lindbergh, Inventor.

By Arthur Brisbane.

The death of Max Hart, victim of pneumonia, ends a career honorable and useful to this country.

Brought to America as a child from Germany, with his brother, Harry Hart, who survives him, the two brothers began working in childhood and have worked ever since without cessation.

Only a few days ago this writer talked with Max Hart in Chicago, asking why he continued long working hours at 75 years of age, with a fortune accumulated.

"I work," said Max Hart, "because I like work, and because my associates and I, in doing work that we need not do, provide work for thousands of others that do need work, and encourage young men starting in business for themselves."

Max Hart was a good American.

The imperial wizard Hiram W. Evans says knights of the Ku Klux Klan will wear masks no longer, and will add a new degree to be known as "knights of the great forest."

That concession to public opinion may mean gradual dwindling away of the formerly hooded brotherhood.

You lose your influence when you appeal to men's common sense instead of appealing to their fear of the mysterious.

As Gabriel writes down every minute of each day all that happens, what events seem important to his celestial mind.

A woman who had foolishly drawn $9,000 from the bank and told a man about it was drugged, soaked with gasoline and burned alive.

In Pittsburgh a man and woman danced 61 hours and 55 minutes without stopping.

Over the Imperial valley in California a Zenith-Albatross plane was trying to stay up in the air longer than any plane had ever stayed.

Bert Hinkler, Australia's "lone eagle," won five air records in a 15½-day flight from England to Australia.

He has the one-man flight distance record, the first nonstop London-to-Rome flight, the record for speed from England to India and from England to Australia.

He spent $250 for gasoline, half the price of a first-class passage by steamer.

Secretary Hoover tells Senator Borah he believes in keeping the 18th amendment. A president is bound by his oath to sincere enforcement of laws enacted thereunder.

Senator Reed of Missouri also questioned about prohibition, says the democratic party has more important things to think about.

Wall street hasn't made up its mind about another boom or a small scare. Stock gamblers will lose in the long run whether they gamble on the long or the short side.

Those who believe that sound properties in the United States are selling for more than they are worth, will be surprised when they find what such properties really are worth.

Colonel Lindbergh is said to be constructing some kind of new airplane, invented or perfected by him, Henry Ford co-operating in his Detroit airplant.

Mr. Ford, who has a great admiration for the young American flier and went flying with him, will oblige this country if he persuades Lindbergh to interest himself in building planes instead of doing stunts in the air.

A severe earthquake in Jerusalem makes us realize that nature and old mother earth pay no attention to the importance of persons or localities.

The Observatore Romano, speaking for the vatican, denounces D'Annunzio's work as harmful to the young, and as dangerous to "cultured classes of high society" as socialistic propaganda is to the masses.

This attack on an intensely popular Italian writer, prospering under Mussolini's personal protection, indicates that the vatican is not influenced by rank or popularity.

OMAHA SLAYER ENDS OWN LIFE

Fred Dobney's Body Is Found With Bullet In Brain.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb., 25—(AP)—Fred Dobney, 45, who shot and killed his mother-in-law and wounded his wife Friday saved at least one bullet for himself. His body with a bullet in his brain was found during the evening in a railroad yard a short distance from his home.

The mother-in-law Mrs. Mary Kuhl, 47, was dead when police arrived. His 19-year-old wife, mother of a two months old daughter, is in a critical condition at a local hospital.

William Sterling, 13, stepson of Mrs. Kuhl, was the only witness to the shooting. He was preparing for school when Dobney entered the Kuhl home. He saw Dobney go to a dresser and procure a revolver.

The boy ran from the house and as he did so heard screams and several shots. Mrs. Dobney ran from the house and when William sought to aid her, Dobney fired at him, the bullet passing through his cap.

Dobney then advanced on his young wife and at close range shot her twice through the head. Before he fled he sent several more shots into her body.

An operation was performed on Mrs. Dobney last night and it is believed that she will recover.

FIRE DESTROYS RURAL CHURCH

Structure Near Emerald Burns With Loss Of $7,500.

Fire, which could not be fought because of lack of water and fire fighting apparatus, completely destroyed the Zion Evangelical Lutheran church three miles west and a mile north of Emerald Friday night. The church was valued at $7,500 by Rev. George Gersib, the pastor. About half the loss is covered by insurance.

Rev. Mr. Gersib, who lives close to the church, discovered the blazing roof about 9 o'clock. Neighbors were called but efforts to save the building were in vain. It is believed that a defective flue sent a shower of sparks into the roof and caused the blaze as a fire had been kept in the furnace all day while workmen were laying a new carpet.

KUHLE TO HEAD STATE EDITORS

Dan Webster of St. Paul Vice President for Coming Year.

Dan Webster, St. Paul, vice president.

Frank Edgecombe, Geneva, treasurer.

E. R. Purcell, Broken Bow and A. F. Buechleer, Grand Island, directors. Holdover members of the board are Fred Price, Newman Grove; Guy F. Dorn, Sidney and E. W. Marvin, Beatrice.

Secretary Buck's annual report showed a healthy membership situation. Coupled with his report was that of Treasurer Edgecombe, stating there was a substantial balance remaining in treasury.

President Legget's annual address reviewed the work of association during the year and stressed the growth of interest in association and organized work. Better business and accounting methods were urged, inclusive of the system of circulation audits, prevalent among dailies. Possibly only 25 of the 400 weeklies in Nebraska, he thought, at present avail themselves of this. Other recommendations touched were as to propaganda or free publicity, local advertising, and a weekly capital news letter.

Bert M. Hardenbrook, former president of state attorneys' association, addressed convention on "the criminal situation," mainly from an economic viewpoint—the cost of crime to the taxpayer. Nebraska's crime bill was represented as $120,000,000 annually.

FORD CAN MEND WATCHES.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—Henry Ford could achieve success as a watchmaker if he ever failed as an automobile manufacturer, in the belief of Bruce Barton, author and editor. Mr. Barton told the North Carolina society of New York that Mr. Ford once told him that was what he would do in case of failure in his present work. He said Ford was an outstanding genius, not only of modern life, but of all time.

Miller & Paine

The Inn of the Hawk and Raven

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

ILLUSTRATED BY E. M. FRANDZEN.

Installment 8.

Gerane, behind a tree some forty paces from the scene of action, had witnessed the thrilling little drama as it was enacted.

At dawn, she, with a dozen stealthy figures, had crept up from the ravine skirting the highway. Her father commanded her to remain behind a monster tree-trunk, while the cat-like rogues stole off to posts appointed. She saw the three guards go about among their companions to arouse them; she watched others scramble to their feet and begin preparations for the breakfast. Then came the clatter of pans and subdued voices. Her heart sank. Where were her father's men? Why were they so slow in attacking? It did not occur to her that all of Jonifer's men were not yet ready to spring out upon the unsuspecting prey.

Then she beheld a tall figure, white-shirted and hatless, in loose, red breeches and black boots, striding across the sward. Suddenly he stopped. His hand went to his side. As if by magic, the little glen was alive with men, men who wore masks.

From her point of vantage, she witnessed everything that succeeded this amazing tableau. She saw her cousins run to the coach; she had a glimpse of the ponderous Broadaxe behind them; she heard the command from her father—and then she saw him standing in front of the tall figure in the red trousers, his pistol pointed. She saw the officer raise, one hand, while the other continued to fumble at his side.

From that time, she scarcely took her gaze from the face of the young dragoon. She heard every word that passed between him and her father; she saw the soldier leap toward the stump and snatch up his pistol; she screamed aloud when her father fired and, but for a sudden faintness, would have thrown herself upon the soldier before he could fire in return. Closing her eyes, she pressed her hand to her heart. Then she heard he father speaking.

At this, she opened her eyes. Once more she was looking at the young officer. A wave of relief surged over her as he lowered the pistol.

Suddenly she felt a great pity for him. He was so handsome and so helpless. A hero in chains, beaten, but not cowed; a gallant figure that dominated the scene, notwithstanding the humiliating part he was forced to play.

She was proud of her father. He to was a gallant gentleman. She shuddered as she thought of the fate that would have befallen this young man, if Julius Broadaxe or any other member of the band had been in her father's place. Broadaxe would not have spared him. He would have shot him down—But would the soldier have spared Julius Broadaxe? She doubted it.

She found herself marveling at the thoroughness with which her friends performed. Almost before she knew what had happened; their task was completed. A few of the brigads were darting about among the soldiers, relieving them of their weapons, while others were testing leather thongs.

Her first experience as a highwayman, though necessarily vicarious, was drawing to an end. It was, in a way, disappointing. It had been so easy, so bloodless, so lacking in all those essential deeds of daring and heroism that she had been led to believe attended raids in which the robbers of Droon Forest took part. She would never again accept as true a word of those hair-rising yarns that were spun by—and now, to her dismay, they were leading the soldiers to trees and tying them up with the leather thongs!

Her eyes went quickly back to the fair-haired captain. He too was walking to a near-by tree. Jonifer Davos was giving directions to two of his men, pointing to the chosen tree.

Gerane caught her breath. She felt the blood rush to her face. Anger, an incomprehensible anger, took possession of her. This was an outrage! An instant later, casting all injunctions to the winds, she strode out of the wood and advanced upon her father.

Jonifer stopped short in the middle of a sentence stunned by sight of her. The lower part of her face was concealed by the cloak she held befort it.

"No," she cried, loudly. 'You shall not do this! It is outrageous. Begone!" This last was directed to the tsartled robbers who carried the straps. "Do you hear me?"

"Now, by all—" began Jonifer.

"Have you no honor? Is not this man a brave, courageous foe? Would you tie him up like a—like a pig? For shame! Set him free! He can do no more harm." Turning to the astounded dragoon, she said: "You are free, sir. Go your way in peace. It is my wish. This is my birthday, and I—"

Jonifer, having found his voice, interrupted her.

"Get back where you belong!" he thundered.

Starcourt laughed. Addressing Jonifer, he said sarcastically:

"By gad—I mistook you to be the leader of this band of rascals." Then bowing to the stripling: "Pardon me, young sir, for my mistake. Prudent lad that you are, I do not blame you for taking good care to lead your bold boys from behind a tree. Discretion is—"

"Leader?" roared Jonifer, aghast. "This—this baby our leader? Now, listen to this, my lads!" He shouted to the robbers all about. "He takes this pretty lambkin to be your chieftain. Join me in the laugh!"

And laugh he did—loudly—but mirthlessly. Jonifer was not amused. Indeed, his boisterous levity was cut rather short. Gerane drew a step or two near.

"How dare you?" she stormed. "How dare you laugh? Would you make a fool of me?"

"No, my baby," cried her father, holding his sides; "you have attended to that yourself."

The young captain stared in bewilderment. Nervy, he thought—nervy of a lad like that to defy—why, the youngster's voice hadn't even lost its boyish treble. And the crown of his hat came no longer than the big ruffian's chin.

"Are you going to tie this man up, or are you going to set him free?" demanded the "lad," fiercely.

"Two questions in one,' replied Jonifer, 'calling for yes and no as an answer. Now, be off,' he added sternly. "Enough of this foolishness. I might have known what would happen, if I allowed you to come along. I should have trussed you to a tree and left you to the wolves."

"As you are proposing to leave these helpless men," aid she scathingly. "Why not kill them outright?"

"Peace!" commanded Jonifer. "Besides,' he added quickly on second thought, 'the wolves never come down to the highway in the daytime.'

"Nor the lions, for that matter,' supplemented Julius Broadaxe.

"And what is more the mail-stage will pass by here a little before noon, so their bondage cannot last more than a few hours," explained her father, to which Broadaxe appended:

"To say nothing of such stray travelers and mountaineers as may—"

"Have done!" exclaimed Gerane, a little quaver in her voice. "I see you are determined to have your own way about this. Nothing I can say or do will alter your—"

She was interrupted by Starcourt. "Thank you, young sir," he said. "I fear you are too young to appreciate the frequently unpleasant stratagems of war. If you live long enough, you will realize that it does not pay to be careless. I quite understand and agree with this excellent gentleman's plan. So long as he declines to accommodate me by blowing my brains out, I can see no reason to question his otherwise intelligent motives. He would be a fool to turn me loose, as you so kindly suggest, only to have me abuse his generosity by cutting the fetters that bind my men and setting the whole pack upon his heels as soon as his back was turned. And that, you may be sure, is precisely what I should do. Moreover, as he very well knows, we would shoot every one of you, if we had the chance."

"Now, there is common sense for you," said Jonifer, inspired. "I have the greatest respect for the gentleman's opinions, even if you have not, my lambkin. Proceed with your work," he went on, addressing his henchmen. "Tie him up securely As for you, my baby, come with me. I would have a word with—"

The voice of Leopold Mathias was heard. He was appealing to Gerane.

"Have pity, young sir. Command your varlets to release me and restore my—er—my belongings. There is nothing of value in—"

Gerane paused to regard the whimpering merchant as she walked toward the road with her father. Jonifer's arm was about her shoulders.

"You go to the deuce," she said distainfully.

The business of securing Starcourt and his company to convenient trees was well-nigh completed with the young captain, who had been watching her as she listened to the low-pitched voice of the tall robber, saw her straighten her shoulders, lift her chin, and, without so much as a glance in his direction, stalk off across the highway and disappear among the trees. Two of the brigands followed her.

"Your son?" inquired the captain, as Jonifer came up.

"No," said the other shortly. Then, with a note of pride in his voice: "My daughter."

"Good Heavens,' fell from Starcourts lips

Five minutes later, there was not a highwayman in sight. They had vanished into the forest, some one way, some another, and with them went not only the treasure of Leopold Mathias, but the sabers and pistols of the vaunted Duke's Dragoons. Jonifer magnificently said good-by to the captain of the troop. He paused before Leopold Mathias, bowed deeply, and, with his hand on his heart, mockingly said goodby to him.

With the reader's permission, we will also say goodby to the rich merchant of Edelweiss. Suffice it to say that fully two hours elapsel before he and his martial escort were discovered and released by a couple of woodsmen who happened to be passing that way. He was grateful to these stolid, ignorant fellows and promised them a reward, but neither he nor the captain of Dragoons had the faintest suspicion that their deliverers were members of the robber band, sent back by Jonifer the Hawk at the tearful behest of his daughter.

SUICIDE LEADS TO RAID.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25—(AP)—A raid by prohibition agents yesterday on Dondale's restaurant, just outside the loop district, was the indirect result, they said, of the suicide a week ago of Ferdinand Steindel, pianist and orchestra leader. Collectors who called on Steindel shortly before he plunged to his death from an apartment hotel window sought to collect on a check signed by Steindel and made payable to Dondale's restaurant. The subsequent investigation brought on the raid. The agents reported seizure of quantities of beer and liquor.

Sweetheart Killer Sentenced to Life

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 25—(AP)—Convicted of killing his sweetheart in what he said was a suicide pact, Joseph Foster Buckley, 26, of Weston, has been sentenced to life imprisonment. A jury last night found him guilty of murder in second degree for the death of Grace E. Mills of Waltham, 19.

The sentence was mandatory upon Judge Hugo Dubuque. A crowd outside the courthouse hooted and jeered the judge when he arrived to hear the verdict. The jury was out six hours. Police were called to clear the streets.

Miss Mills was shot and killed on an automobile ride with Buckley on November 15, last. Buckley attempted suicide at the same time and for several days it was not believed he could recover.

THE YOSEMITE PINES.

The New York Times reveals a plan on foot to sell a 20-mile tract of the Yosemite park for lumbering rights to private companies. The program as now outlined will turn over to the lumber concerns two of the three finest groves of sugar pines to be found in the United States, and will likewise eliminate two of the three groves of giant trees for which the Yosemite is world-famed.

Only prompt congressional action, it is said, can save these trees.

The reason assigned by park officials for altering these boundaries of the Yosemite reserve is that the lands to be eliminated are either already privately owned and so cannot be protected by park service, or are given for exchange for privately owned lands elsewhere within the park area. They declare the transfer will facilitate the park administration and will assure preservation of areas in more traveled portions of the park. It is only a question of time, they say, before these timbered tracts will be cut by the private owners. The only measure which can avert such action will be condemnation proceedings, and purchase by the state of California.

The total area to be cut out of the park is 13,200 acres, of which 7,080, or a little more than half is privately-owned. Of the latter, 1,500 has already been cut, mostly around the world-famous Merced and Tuolumne groves of giant trees. The value of the timber on the government lands to be excluded from Yosemite is estimated by lumber companies at $168,000 and by the United States Forest Service at $230,000. The park will receive in exchange a full title to privately-owned timber valued by the lumber companies at $184,000 and by the Forest Service at $144,000. The Forest Service estimates would indicate a profit to the lumber companies of $90,000 in addition to the acquisition of timber which is more readily accessible. The defense of this apparent disproportion in the properties to be exchanged is that the timber will be cut only 80 per cent, under the supervision of the Forest service, and would involve costly processes of cleaning up not usually contemplated in lumbering operations.

Even if the Forest Service were the actual monetary gainer in the exchange, which it is not according to its own estimates, the transaction should be disapproved. The area involved includes the finest stands of gigantic sugar pines, considered by naturalists to be the finest trees in America, next to the sequoias and redwoods. Millions of people have traveled long distances to view these majestic groves and to delight in their beauties. If the park needs to be rounded out for efficient administration, surely some other method can be found without sacrificing the finest two groves of sugar pines in the entire area.

It is a question in which the people of the United States have a vital interest. Some of these trees are estimated to be hundreds of years old. They cannot be replaced in the lifetime of the present generation or for many generations to come. If they are to be cut by the lumbering interests, they will be lost for all time without any chance of replacing them. But if the public does desire to preserve the great forests of Yosemite it must be exceedingly alert. Private interests have always viewed the areas set aside in national parks greedily for as a rule they embrace the noblest forests tracts to be found in America. Congress should take steps immediately to make certain these sugar-pine groves in Yosemite are preserved for posterity. They have no rival in the world and if sacrificed to the lumberman's axe it will be a national and world loss.

VALIDITY OF THE GASOLINE TAX.

In consequence of the Illinois supreme court decision holding unconstitutional the gasoline tax law in that state, and granting the Chicago Motor club an injunction to restrain further collection of the tax, similar statutes in other states will be closely scrutinized to see whether they might likewise fail to stand up under legal attack.

The effect in Illinois goes farther than to halt the ambitious program of paved highways which has been under way there. It seriously shakes the position of Governor Small as a candidate for re-election, whose chief bid for public favor has been his advocacy of good roads. He was the one who championed the gas tax bill in the legislature last year. It had strong opposition, but was finally put through by a combination of the governor's forces with Chicago senators and representatives who were trying to get bills passed largely increasing the limit of bond issues by that city. These latter measures were desired by Mayor Thompson of Chicago, and the alliance formed between himself and Small enabled both to secure what they wanted.

Now, however, the supreme court steps in and deprives the governor of his share of the spoils. His political prestige is thus seriously marred at a critical stage in his career. The result may be to overthrow the tripartite combination of Small, Thompson and Frank L. Smith, formed for the purpose of enabling its members, respectively, to retain possession of the Illinois state government, the city hall in Chicago, and the senatorial seat at Washington.

In the suit successfully prosecuted by the Chicago Motor club against the gas tax law, these principal points of unconstitutionality were raised against it:

1.—That the provisions for refund of the tax to those using gasoline for other purposes than highway transportation constituted a gift from the state treasury to individuals.

2.—That it subjected all motorists to a double tax, since they were already paying a license tax on their vehicles for the purpose of improving and maintaining highways.

3.—That it discriminated against automobile users in favor of other citizens.

4.—That it allowed one kind of motor vehicle fuel—kerosene—to go tax free, while requiring another—gasoline—to bear the tax.

5.—That the title of the bill was irregular and defective.

The high bench of Illinois finds that the act transgresses both the federal and state constitutions in several particulars. It is held to be unequal taxation, and the refund provision is pronounced invalid as violating the principle that money cannot be taken from the public treasury and donated to individuals.

It is fortunate for Nebraska, in view of this interpretation, that the last legislature amended the gas tax law of this state by doing away with all exemptions and refunds. The tax now applies uniformly here to all gasoline users, and no complaint of favoritism can be urged.

As to the question of discrimination between kerosene and gasoline used in propelling motor vehicles, the Nebraska law still contains the same feature as the one in Illinois. Gasoline is taxed but kerosene is not, though both may be used for the same purpose.

Nebraska also collects both the tax on gasoline and a registration fee on every motor vehicle. If this should be construed by the courts as double taxation, contary to the constitution, the law here would go down, as it has in Illinois.

So far as discrimination between different classes of citizens is concerned, Nebraska is in the clear. Its constitution expressly authorizes taxation of different classes of property in different ways, though as between taxpayers in the same class it must be uniform.

Illinois has already developed a vast system of modern highways by means of bond issues, so that the knocking out of the gasoline tax law there will not prove so much of a handicap to the good roads program as it would be in other states which depend chiefly on the gas tax for their highway revenue.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DEATHS IN FIVE YEARS.

Recklessness and carelessness on the part of automobile drivers is blamed for the greatest portion of the 23,000 deaths resulting from auto "accidents" during 1927. That is a toll of one life for every 1,000 automobiles in the United States.

Those figures, which receive little more than passing attention when quoted would throw this nation into a fury and a war if they represented deaths of American citizens on foreign soil.

During the last five years 100,000 deaths and 3,500,000 injuries are directly traceable to motor vehicles. The casualties exceed by more than 3,000,000 the total number of casualties suffered by United States soldiers during the World war.

Sudden death is revealed in all its terribleness when it strikes close, but when it is removed outside one's immediate family or circle of friends it assumes a commonplace aspect, provided of course it does not strike one of society's open sores.

Death by reckless and careless automobile driving, regretable as it is, is generally of the commonplace sort. Perhaps it is because every collision and every upset, whether fatal or not, is dumped into the "accident" class and is passed over as just another one of those unfortunate things that fate controls.

When public opinion centers its attention and contempt on the incompetent hands on the steering wheel rather than on the invisible hand of fate, there may be an effort on the part of some careless drivers to bring themselves up in the eyes of life-respecting society.

Everyday Questions

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

Copyright 1928, New York Tribune.

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seek to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

Raleigh, N. C.

For one American who visits Peru, Mexico or Brazil thousands visit Europe. Why is the lure of the east so much stronger than that of the south?

Because the spirit within us draws us back to the land of our fathers. Climate and language accelerate the impulse, and history environs it with countless cherished memories. Nevertheless, the south has immense areas and a curious glitter from the past, as well as a future so great as to be incalculable. Think of Brazil, whose territory is only exceeded by those of Great Britain, the United States and perhaps Russia.

One of her twenty provinces, Amazon, is larger than France, Germany, Spain, Italy and Belgium combined, and nearly all abound in undeveloped natural resources.

The cities and palaces of the Incas, with their triple ramparts, tower above Cuzeo in Peru. Here is a famous cavern in whose depths legend asserts the treasures of these mysterious rulers are hidden. The explorations, reports and adventures of travelers in the South American republics supply ample evidence of their charm and loveliness, the wonder of their massive ruins and the wealth of their possessions. Americans bent on pleasure, information or trade should sail southward far more than they do.

Bridgeport, Conn.

What are the best features of a religious daily newspaper and can one be established in the United States which all creeds and sects would support?

The best features of such an organ as your letter desires would be a comprehensive outlook on national and international matters and expert discussion of all scientific, literary, artistic, political and recreational activities. It should apply the principles of righteousness and good will to human affairs and submit social and economic issues to the control of integrity of character and justice for all concerned.

Courage to face difficult situations, wisdom to expound and solve their problems, knowledge of what is most available for the public good and willingness to co-operate with other agencies to secure it would characterize its policies.

Its criticisms should be urbane and charitable. Yet when the need arises it must have a punch in reserve for cant, pretension, fraud and meanness. The salt of humor is a valuable aid to any type of journalism and healthy satire for humbugs deserves a place in its columns. But jaundiced estimates of men and events which signify little or nothing but the writer's spleen are useless and objectionable.

Meretricious smartness, unctuous comments, pious piffle, minatory criticisms of different churches and creeds will be anathema to the "daily" your letter solicits. It will escape the editorial myopia combined with professional dread of anything unconventional in ecclesiastical circles which forfeits the regard of intelligent readers. Every line of it should interest in order to illuminate them. Judicious appraisals, free from puffing, of the leading personalities and events in the religious realm will add to its strength.

The establishment of this ideal paper with a nation-wide circulation in a country as large as ours depends upon two primary factors—first, a large amount of money; secondly, and emphatically, the ubiquitous genius who can edit it and draw to himself the galaxy of talents which shines for all and sundry. Find these factors and the geographical barriers may be measurably overcome. I own that as I see it the enterprise is remote from actual accomplishment.

Pittston, Pa.

Is there any poetry which I can read to supplement Tennyson's "Idylls of the King"? I hear these criticized by my friends, who taunt me for being mid-Victorian in my tastes. Yet I like the laureate's work and wish I could compare it with other poetry on these themes.

Read Edwin Arlington Robinson's "Tristam," published by the Macmillan company. The story is the richest and most romantic of all the Arthurian tales and Mr. Robinson is one of the greatest of modern American poets.

His treatment of the theme is realistic, vivid, faithful to the two characters delineated. The magnetic attraction of Tristam and Isoit for each other is portrayed in telling phrases:

"How surely it was fate that his love now
Should light with hers at the last fire of time
A flaming way to death."

Compare Mr. Robinson's Isolt and her penetrating analysis of the elemental passion which possesses her with any other poetry written today. You will realize, I think, the true worth of our American poet.

By all means be a mid-Victorian, if this means your intellectual association with the master spirits of that time. You are in better literary company than our era has yet supplied.

Shingles.

S. would appreciate an article on Shingles. So would a lot of others, S., so here's a little "sumpin:"

Shingles is an acute, inflammatory, self-limited disease of the skin, characterized by the appearance of several groups of small blisters on slightly elevated inflamed areas, corresponding to the distribution of the nerve trunk. They most often appear on the chest and in the lumbar region and above the eyes. They usually are on but one side at a time.

Now the first thing I want to do is to put a quietus on the old superstition that if shingles are on both sides of the chest and meet in front, the patient will die. In the first place, they very rarely appear they follow the main nerve tracks, they follow he main nerve tracks, and as there is no nerve which completely encircles the body, you can see how unlikely it is for the eruption to meet, should nerves on both sides of the body be affected. Naturally, in old people and those greatly under par in health, the disease may produce complications which may be serious.

Cause and Treatment—It is not definitely known what the cause of shingles is, but it has been found that it is often associated with infectious spots, such as pyorrhea, teeth abscesses, and bad tonsils, so it looks as though some cases might be due to the germs or poisons absorbed from these. At any rate, you will have to realize that there is something that has caused the tissues to lose their fighting power, and you must find out what that is and remedy it. We know that the nerves and all the tissues of the body are profoundly affected by wrong diet, so look to your diet primarily.

The duration of the disease is from ten days to three weeks.

The external treatment is mostly to protect the parts so the little blebs won't rupture. Various remedies are used—one is a dusting powder, made of equal parts of zinc oxide, boric acid and talcum powder, heavily sprinkled on the eruptions, then covered with a layer of cotton covered with gauze and strapped on with adhesive. Another method is the use of some antiseptic ointment, such as zinc oxide; still another is painting the eruption with pure ichthyol and water, half and half. Exposure to the direct sunlight or the artificial sun rays from especially constructed lights (the ultra violet rays) is beneficial.

Calcium or Lime Needs.

J. was very much impressed by my article on the importance of calcium in the diet. He wants to know if lime water wouldn't be good to take, and how to prepare it.

No, J., lime water isn't good nor necessary to take. I'm afraid you didn't read my article carefully enough, or you would have noticed that I said you should get your calcium in milk, cheese and fresh vegetables. A quart of milk contains more calcium than a quart of clear, saturated solution of lime water.

Children should have at least three glasses of milk daily, and adults two, for its calcium, as well as for its biologically complete protein and vitamins. It used to be customary to put lime water in babies' formulas, but it is very seldom used now. It is not necessary, and it doesn't make the milk more digestible.

It is highly important to get sufficient calcium, for it constitutes three-fourths of the mineral content of the body; 99 per cent of it is in the bones and teeth. Sherman says that the ordinary mixed diet of the American and European, at least in cities and towns, is probably more deficient in calcium than in any other element. But get it in your milk and other foods, J., not from lime water.

The Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By Will Rogers.

Here's another one about a kid that disgraced his folks, like kids are always doing. This George had been away for a week with his mother in the country, and his little brother, Jack, had been left at home with his dad. The teacher was hearing all about it.

"Well, did the little brother learn anything while you and Mama were gone?"

"Yeah, he learned a lot of new words."

"What, for instance?"

"Oh, they're all words that Mama won't allow us to say! Jack, he learned them from Dad."

Happy thought. So much of a charity fund goes to pay overhead; why not give the office jobs to those who need charity?

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Whitefoot's Discovery

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Discovery has a thrill its own,
Especially if you're alone.
—Whitefoot the Wood Mouse.

Whitefoot the Wood Mouse was exploring in the Old Orchard. He was sitting on one of Farmer Brown's bee-hives just at the edge of the Old Orchard nearest Farmer Brown's dooryard. He hadn't been able to get into the hive. There was some wire over the entrance to it. It had been put there to keep out just such little explorers as Whitefoot. And Whitefoot wanted to get into that hive more than he had ever wanted to get into any place before that he could remember.

As he sat there on top of that hive he saw that there were a number of other hives. "Perhaps I can find one that I can get into," thought he. "Anyway, it won't do any harm to look."

He climbed all over the next hive and was disappointed.

So Whitefoot continued his exploring. He climbed all over the next hive and was disappointed. He did the same thing to the third hive, with no better results. The fourth hive was just like the others he had tried to get into. But on the fifth hive he found when he tried it that the wire covering the little entrance was loose. Yes, sir, it was loose. Whitefoot went to work with teeth and claws. He gnawed away a little bit around the entrance. He tugged and pulled at the wire and it became more loose. All the time that he was working his nose told him that there were just as interesting things inside that hive as inside the first one. But while he worked he kept a watchful eye open for Hooty the Owl or Spooky the Screech Owl, and it was well he did. Just in time he saw Spooky coming through the moonlight. Whitefoot whisked around underneath the hive and there he clung. Spooky passed on without seeing him.

"If only I can get inside Spooky can hang around all he pleases," muttered Whitefoot, as he returned to work at the little doorway. In a few minutes he had a place that he could squeeze through. Just inside he stopped. It was dark in there. But Whitefoot didn't mind that. He was used to moving about in the dark. He stopped to find out all he could by means of his nose. It was the first time he had even been inside a beehive. He knew it was the home of bees. His nose told him that. His nose told him that there was a great mass of bees inside. You see, he had been in hollow trees in which bees were living, so he knew the smell of honey and the smell of bees. Also he knew that, while in summer it wouldn't have been possible for him to enter that hive, in winter the bees were asleep and the could enter in safety.

"I'd like to live here," said Whitefoot to himself. "It would be a splendid place to spend the rest of the winter. It is warm, there's plenty to eat right at hand and no one would ever, ever think of looking for me here. When warm weather comes I can move out. I believe I'll do it. Yes, sir, I believe I'll do it. All I need to do is to make a place in the back here and build a comfortable nest. All those bees are at the top: they won't bother me at all. The dead ones will be good eating and there are always dead ones. Yes, sir, this is the place to spend the rest of the winter. I wish I had come over here earlier now."

COMPENSATION FOR DISABLED VETERAN

Man Who Lost Arm Wins Award After Fight Which Lasted For Ten Years.

OMAHA, Feb. 25—(AP)—After a 10-year fight, Omar Pierce, Thurman, Ia., disabled World war veteran, who with his wife and three children has been making his home in a small one room shack, was Friday awarded government compensation of $2,469 and a monthly allowance of $80 for the rest of his life.

The veteran's case was taken up six months ago by Mrs. J. P. Jensen, in charge of the American Legion service work for Nebraska.

While Pierce was stationed at Camp Dodge, Ia., he suffered an infection which later necessitated the amputation of his left arm at the shoulder. He underwent ten operations before the infection was checked. The compensation awarded him represents back pay from 1922, when his army service was terminated.

WILSON FUNERAL TO OCCUR MONDAY

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Feb. 25—Funeral services for H. D. Wilson, president of the Nebraska City National bank, who died Friday morning, will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Rev. A. E. Knickerbocker of Minneapolis, formerly of Nebraska City, will conduct the services.

COMMITTEE OF 200 WILL MEET

To Hear Reports of Sub-Committees Next Wednesday Night.

The committee of 200 studying the financial needs of the city will meet next Wednesday night to receive the reports of the sub-committees. Among these will be the charter revision and financing group.

All of the reports except that of the park committee will be ready on Wednesday night, it was said Saturday. Some of them already are in the hands of the greater committee and the findings have been published. These include the health, police and street departments.

As soon as the reports have been submitted to the committee of 200, it was understood Saturday, they will be submitted to the council with a recommendation that corrective legislation be submitted for a charter amendment. Aside from asking that an amendment setting up a city manager plan be drafted, no other recommendation would be made, it was indicated.

March 5 is the last date on which the proposals can be submitted at a regular meeting of the council. This, councilmen have asserted, will not give sufficient time to study the results of the fact finding committees and frame the necessary legislative recommendations.

The fact finders made no effort to go into the matter of an airport for Lincoln. That was in the hands of John Markel and the project taken over by the American legion. The organization circulated petitions asking that a bond proposal be submitted at a special election. The petitions contained more than 1,900 signatures, and asked for $100,000.

The city commissioners have announced that unless the committee of 200 presents its findings with proposals that will allow the council time to prepare the suggested amendments, they will not bring the bond issue to a vote.

Thought

The stocks of a great department store, come from the ends of the earth. The raw materials especially, some of which travel over continents and oceans before they eventually find their way to our counters and shelves.

But the most important of all raw materials are ideas.

It doesnt take much silk to make a dress or a pair of hose, nor does it take a great deal of leather to cover My Lady's foot, but it does take a great deal of thought on the part of the person who buys the finished product for you.

The larger a department store, the greater its resources, the broader its organization — the better grade of thought its buyers can afford to put into the things they buy for you.

And, as every one knows, Thought is what makes merchandise salable and service efficient.

GRAIN MARKETS.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Feb. 25

Large receipts of corn and favorable weather for corn movement brought about late weakness today both in the corn market and in wheat. Primary a rivals of corn today amounted to 2,309,000 bushels, compared with 860,000 bushels a week ago. Besides, liberal receipts of corn on Monday were looked for.

Corn closed unsettled, ⅝@¾c net lower, wheat ⅝@1c off, oats unchanged to ¼c down and provisions unchanged to 7c higher.

According to current trade advices, chief concern in regard to winter wheat appears to be as to states east of the Mississippi, where freezing and thawing conditions have succeeded each other with but little snow. However, experts today contended that it is yet early to tell about actual damage and the acreage is so large that injury would have to be extensive in order to prove itself a deciding market factor.

Decreasing stocks of wheat in Australia, too, received considerable notice today among traders here. The Australian visible supply was reported as totalling at present 48,000,000 bushels, against 90,000,000 bushels a year ago. This is 3,000,000 bushels falling off, compared with a month back, and it was added that interior reserves in Australia are very light.

Weekly Trade Review.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(A. P.)—Dun's today said:

No change from the decided unevenness of commercial conditions was either expected or witnessed during the present short week. Reports from individual trades still reveal sharply varying features, an expansion in some branches, contrasting with hesitation in other quarters, and irregularities in commodity prices continuing marked.

The holiday naturally reduced the volume of transactions, but the forward trend in some of the principal lines, which has been the most encouraging phase of the year, was maintained and in certain cases moderately extended. Recent gains in the steel industry, reflecting the enlarging needs of automobile makers and some other manufacturing interests, have been fully held, while some divisions of textiles have experienced a distinct upturn. Such favorable tendencies as exist, however, are qualified by the greater emphasis placed upon the labor situation, atetnion being focused more closely on evidences of unemployment. The comparatively mild and open winter in different sections has lessened demands for seasonable goods, thereby reacting adversely upon factory operations in numerous instances, and lowering working forces and the public buying power.

Weekly bank clearings, $8,967,702,000, an increase of 9.9 per cent over last year.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

By International News Service.
NEW YORK, Feb. 25

Friday's closing rally in the industrial stocks was carried into the first period today and further imp ovement was recorded in prices of the active stocks which bore the brunt of the week's selling pressure. The speculative interest aroused in the railroad stocks was exhibited in the active buying of Wabash, St. Louis Southwestern, Erie, Pennsylvania and other rail shares at 1@3 points above Friday's close.

Prospects of alignment of Wash railroad in the proposed trunk line consolidations under the Van Sweringen and Loree leadership has brought the stock of this road to the fore as an attractive speculation. The stock has moved up from 54 to above 63 since Friday noon, when the first rumors of the possible relincuishing of the Loree grip on this road reached the financial district.

The week-end trade reviews were not very encouraging. Buth Dun's and Bradstreet's surveys reported "spottiness" in the important lines of domestic trade, with a falling off in demand for commodities that are generally moving to market quite freely at this time of year. Continued exportation of gold, with uninterrupted selling of securities by the reserve banks, may operate to restrict the supply of funds for speculative purposes in the Wall street view, and this will force further liquidation of stocks.

Pennsylvania was a leader in the forward move of high grade dividend-paying railroad stocks. In contrast with most of the class 1 roads, Pennsylvania broke all records for peacetime earnings in 1927, and current business on the road is in satisfactory volume.

Charging unlawful acquisition of the Katy and the Cotton Belt (St. Louis Southwestern) lines, the interstate commerce commission filed a complaint against the Kansas City Southern railway, which is also controlled by L. F. Loree, chairman of the board. Should the commission be successful in its efforts to compel Kansas City Southern to "divest itself" of all interest in the capital stock of these roads, it will place in the competitive markets two or more lines of strategic value and importance. Kansas City Southern was in good demand today, at a slightly higher level of prices.

Shorts in International Nickel, Radio and other speculative leaders found the supply of floating stocks somewhat limited, and were forced to bid 1@3 points higher. Lehn & Fink continued to move upward while Wright Aeronautical was under selling pressure and moved downward 6 points to 69½. The Texas Sulphur stocks were in demand on reports of a firmer market for their product as well as bullish statements relative to the latest surveys of their producing properties.

Mack Trucks sold down 4 points to 95 in the second period in response to the unfavorable earnings statement recently published.

Victor Talking Machine responded with Higher prices to the restoration of dividends on the common shares at $4 annually. Oil stocks were firm, with Phillips Petroleum in the lead, coppers steady and sugars firm.

Speculative railroad stocks of roads with merger possibilities jumped to the front in thefinal period. Western Maryland common rose 6 points to 43 in active trading, and Wabash continued its advance to 65⅝, up 6½ points for the day and 10 points since Friday noon. Kansas City Southern Katy and St. Louis Southwestern were well bought at current prices. Pennsylvania, Union Pacific and Atchison moved up fractionally.

Strength and activity in International Nickel, Montana Power and Radio attested the continuance of short covering until the final gong. Victor Talking Machine was also in demand. General Motors, United States Steel and other recognized market leaders, moved in reduced trading through a narrow price margin.

Stock prices in all departments were slightly higher at the opening of the market today. United tSates Steel sold ⅝ higher at 140¼ and General Motors gained ¼ to 136⅛. Coppers were steady, with Anaconda and Kennecott each up ¼ at 55½ and 82⅝ respectively. Rails were active and higher. New York Central gaining ⅝ to 159⅝; Pennsylvania advanced ⅛ to 65⅛ and New York, New Haven & Hartford rose ⅝ to 62. Motors advanced fractionally, although United States Rubber declined ¼ to 45⅝.

M. K. BLACKMER DEFENDS FATHER IN OIL INQUIRY

transaction, the senate Teapot Dome committee today called his son, Myron K. Blackmer of Denver, a vice president of the Midwest Refining Co.

The son told the committee that he knew that his father had been negotiating with the late A. E. Humphreys for oil from his Texas fields, which the Continental subsequently bought and resold to the Sinclair Crude Oil Co., and the Prairie Oil & Gas Co., at an enormous profit.

"The Standard Oil of Indiana, which owns all of our stock, was short of crude at that time," Blackmer said.

When his attention was called to the correspondence between his father, who is an exile in Europe, and Robert W. Stewart, dominant figure of the Standard of Indiana, Blackmer said he no doubt saw some of the correspondence at the time.

"My knowledge about the negotiations is only general, as I had no part in them," Blackmer said. "At one time my father talked to Colonel Humphreys about buying his whole property."

"When did you learn that the oil was being bought through the Continental Trading Co? Senator Walsh asked.

Made About 750,000.

"My father told me he had an interest in the Continental company and had made about $750,000 out of the company," Blackmer replied.

"Was it before your father went to Europe?"

"Yes sir."

"Tell us what your father told you about the 'Continental,' 'Walsh pursued.

"He did not tell me much. I had heard of the Continental before. He told me to keep the matter confidential as he had not decided whether he would keep the profits as there was the possibility that the Midwest might seek to recover them."

"Were your father and yourself then both officers of the Midwest?"

"Yes sir."

"If any of this money was coming to the Midwest and you were an officer of that company it was your duty to make every effort to recover it, wasn't it?"

"Well, my father was chairman of the board and I naturally thought it was a matter for him to decide."

"Have you told us all your father told you about the Continental?"

"Yes sir."

"What was the occasion of your fahter telling you about it?"

Advised in New York.

"I don't know. I am not familiar with all my father's business affairs. It was in New York that he told me."

"Did it occur to you at the time that that was an extraordinarily large profit?"

"It seemed it was a large profit."

"Did he tell you they were in bonds?"

"Yes sir, he said they were in his safety deposit box in New York."

"What do you know about the Western Oil Fields corporation?"

"I know of it and know its officers."

"Who are they?"

"Former Governor Shoup of Colorado is president and a Mr. Bradley. Another man interested is named Malone."

Blackmer said there was no relationship between his company and the Western Oil Fields corporation.

"Did you know of any contract the Western Oil Fields corporation had with the Continental?" put in Chairman Nye.

"No sir."

Young Blackmer amended his testimony to say that it was in the spring of 1927 that he saw his father. He also said he saw his father at Montreal in 1926, at the time the elder Blackmer told Karl W. Schuyler, Denver attorney about the Continental Liberty bonds.

"Have you talked with Colonel Stewart of the Standard Oil of Indiana about the matter?" Nye asked.

Talked With Stewart.

"Yes, yes, I have, but I haven't talked to him in a couple of years."

Blackmer said he knew H. S. Osler, president of the now extinct Continental company.

"What Liberty bonds have passed through your hands in the past four years.

"The only transaction I can remember is that I delivered quite a number of securities, including Liberty bonds, to Mr. Holmes, my father's attorney, in the spring of 1924."

"How much of bonds was involved?"

"I can't say definitely, but it was quite a large amount.

"Was it in excess of $100,00?"

"Yes."

"Has your father indicated that he plans to return from Europe?"

"No, sir."

"Tell us about your conversations with Colonel Stewart," Nye directed.

Told About Progress.

"Several times I have told him of the progress of the litigation involving my father."

"Did he appear to be greatly interested?"

"He was always friendly toward me and the relations between him and my father were always pleasant. I think my father had the complete confidence of Col. Stewart."

Replying to Walsh, Blackmer said that as far as his father was concerned he believed his connection with the Continental was entirely honorable.

"You know that the whole world is condemning this transaction, don't you?" asked Senator Walsh.

"Yes sir."

Blackmer testified he never talked to Harry F. Sinclair about the Continental deal.

SHIP OF STATE HAS NO PILOT

Governor McMullen's departure for Chicago and Boston to deliver addresses for broadcasting by radio leaves the state government of Nebraska without an official head for the time being. Lieutenant Governor George A. Williams of Fairmont has not been asked to officiate in his place, and in the absence of a formal request Williams is not undertaking to perform any executive functions.

Code departments are running along just the same as they do when the governor is here. The secretary of each department administers its affairs, and only occasionally is the governor consulted. One of the secretaries, Lincoln Frost of the welfare department, is also absent from the state at present, attending a national welfare convention in New York.

25 Escape Costly Des Moines Fire

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 25— (AP)—Twenty-five persons were rescued by police when an early morning fire destroyed the Harrington apartments at 667 Sixteenth street in what firemen described as one of Des Moines' worst fires in months.

The entire building was enveloped in flames and fire officials said the structure would be a total loss. At 8 o'clock this morning firemen were confining their efforts to keeping the flames from spreading to surrounding buildings.

Big Loss at Sharon, Pa.,

SHARON, Pa., Feb. 25—(AP)—Fire destroyed an entire business block, with a loss unofficially estimated a. nearly a half million dollars, here early today and drove three score guests of the Shenango hotel, many of them in their night clothing, from the building. The hotel was one of four buildings destroyed.

While a maid employed at the hotel had not been accounted for, it was not ascertained whether she stayed at the hotel during the night. Her name was not learned.

Later it was learned that the maid, Anna Paulo, left Sharon last night to spend the weekend with friends out of the city.

NORRIS ATTACKS PLAN TO LEASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—In a bitter arraignment of the Madden-Willis bill for the leasing of Muscle Shoals to the American Cyanamid Co., and the Air Nitrates corporation, Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, yesterday charged in the senate that sinister influences were at work on behalf of that measure, as opposed to his resolution which would place the Alabama project under government operation.

The Nebraskan accused officials of the two organizations with using possible fertilizer production as a cloak to get support from the farmers, although modern science had made such production at Muscle Shoals economically unfeasible. The real aim, he said, was to obtain control of the vast power resources there. He read testimony which officials of the organizations had given to congressional committ es in the past in opposition to previous bills for disposition of the Shoals, including the Ford offer, and said it applied "100 per cent and more so" to the present Madden-Willis bill.

Norris also attacked Chester H. Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau federation, for supporting the American Cyanamid Co., bid.

"The time will come," he said, "when members of the American Farm Bureau federation will realize that their rersentative in Washington is leading them astray in trying to convince them of something about which he knows little or nothing."

Norris insisted that to accept the Cyanamid company and Air Nitrates corporation bid would mean "the greatest subsidy and the greatest donation ever given to the corporations by the government." He described the Willis-Madden proposal as "the worst Muscle Shoals bill yet put in from the standpoint of the government."

ILLINOIS TRAIN ROBBERS FLEE WITH $133,000

accomplices, who still menaced passengers and crew with their weapons as all backed to a large touring car which one of them started. The two men then clambered in and sped away, the train proceeding to Harvey where the mail clerks telephoned to postal authorities here. The crew and mail clerks proceeded.

Money from Federal Reserve.

Of the money stolen, $80,000 was a shipment from the Federal Reserve bank in Chicago to the First National bank of Harvey.

The money was to meet a two weeks' payroll for three of four Harvey factories, said T. G. Hudson, vice president of the Harvey bank.

The $80,000 did not represent a los sto the First National of Harvey, he said, since it still was technically in the control of the Chicago reserve bank. It probably was fully insured, Mr. Hudson said. The Chicago Federal Reserve bank immediately sent a duplicate shipment.

Of the loot $53,000 was consigned from the First National bank of Chicago to its correspondent bank, the Bank of Harvey.

The previous holdup of the same train occurred September 10, 1926 and the amount obtained at that time was $135,000, the money being consigned to the same two banks at Harvey. No trace of the robbers was ever found. They entered the mail car as the train left Chicago Lawn station and left it as Evergreen station was reached. The men escaped with the money in two mail sacks.

Two men guarded the two shipments totalling $133,000. Both were tied up by the robbers who entered the mail car after they had bombed their way in.

One of the mail clerks, who stuck his head out of the window just before the entrance was blasted narrowly missed death when two of the robbers fired at him.

The robbery required by twelve minutes.

Ahead of the mail coach were three baggage cars and behind it two passenger cars, carrying about 100 passengers.

The money from the Federal Reserve bank was in a leather pouch

The mail clerks were C. P. Peters of Battle Creek, Mich., and L. M. Lyon of Charlotte, Mich.

Goethals Now Says Chaffee Not Murderer

KENOSHA, Wis., Feb. 25—(AP)—August Goethals, Milwaukee janitor, confessed today Kenosha police announced, that his story, pinning the murder of James Sears and Madelynne Latimer near Kenosha two years ago on Leo Chaffee, a dead ex-convict, was fabricated. He said that his story was fictitious and he absolved Chaffee from any connection with the crime.

"YOU HONOR ME," SAYS FULLER AS HEFLIN ATTACKS

BOSTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—The attack made upon him yesterday in the United States senate by Senator Thomas Heflin of Alabama, Gov. Alvan T. Fuller has made a one sentence reply.

"I consider it an honor to be attacked by Tom Heflin," he told newspapermen.

Heflin charged that a recent expression of opinion by Governor Fuller, who is a republican, that either Herbert Hoover or Governor Smith of New York ought to be elected president, was "feeble" with regard to Hoover, and inspired by "the Roman Catholic political machine" as regards Smith.

In the same statement, Mr. Fuller had advised the democrats that if Smith were not nominated, the democratic party might as well "reorganize as a free trade council of the Ku Klux Klan, with Tom Heflin as head kleagle."

THINK BOY HERO IS TO RECOVER

Charles Robbins Not Yet Told of Death of His Brother.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 25—(AP)—For the first time since Charles Robbins 11, was badly burned Tuesday in helping his younger brother save their mother's life, hospital authorities expressed confidence today that the boy will recover. He has been making a steady improvement and is conscious much of the time.

Although he has asked repeatedly about his brother, Melvin, who died Wednesday of burns, he has not been informed of the latter's death. He has not discussed the fire at the Robbins home with his father, Floral Robbins, the latter said Friday night.

Mrs. Robbins, also ignorant of Melvin's death, and that Charles, if he lives, may be blind, will be told by Robbins today.

Honors due a hero will be paid Melvin Robbins, 9, at his funeral on Monday afternoon.

City and county officials will attend, a double platoon of uniformed police will be escort, and more than one hundred uniformed firemen will be present. Members of the city commission will probably attend in a body.

THREE RICHARDSON RESIDENTS CALLED

Civil War Veteran, Native of Nebraska, Dies At An Advanced Age.

(Special to The Star.)

FALLS CITY, Neb., Feb. 25—Three pioneer residents, one a Civil war veteran, died in this vicinity Friday.

James Wulf, 86, passed away at the county farm. Born in Shubert, Wulf spent part of his life in Kansas and Missouri, although he farmed in this section for many years. He made violins for a pastime. A violin player himself, Wulf began to make the instruments after he entered the poor farm. He fashioned the violins with crude tools, using black walnut for the bottoms and white spruce for the tops.

After undergoing an operation, George F. Coon, 69, prominent farmer, succumbed. Coon had lived in the county for 50 years. He was born in Cass county, Iowa, later moving to Weeping Water and thence to Falls City.

Jacob F. Mack, 60, Barada, who had farmed in the county for 40 years, died of tuberculosis. He was born at Baden, Germany, and was married in Falls City.

MUNICIPAL PLANT LOSING PATRONAGE

Towns Which Formerly Bought Current of Pawnee City Go to Private Corporation.

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., Feb. 25—Activities in Pawnee county in the past few months by the Iowa-Nebraska electric company have resulted in sale to it of three transmission lines by villages formerly under contract with the Pawnee City municipal electric plant and overtures to a fourth town, Summerfield, Kas.

Summerfield officials recently signed a 10-year agreement with this city for their electric power, but appeared here this week and stated that the corporation offer was more attractive and they wished to be released from the local contract. Distributing systems at Burchard and Steinauer have already been sold by those places to the Lincoln company and the Pawnee City-Dubois high voltage line a few weeks ago was sold by DuBois to the utility.

Acquisition of the properties is said by Iowa-Nebraska officers to be a fore-runner of construction of a transmission line from Holmesville to connect with the Humboldt plant.

Farms and Land for Rent 76

FARM—To rent, one small 40-acre farm, good improvements; well equipped blacksmith shop. M. L. Rawlings, Wymore, Nebr.

WANTED TO HEAR—From an experienced dairy, hog and poultry farmer with from $1,500 to $2,000 to go into the dairy, hog and poultry business on a 50-50 plan. I own a good farm in Lincoln county, well equipped, with pasture, hay and alfalfa and sweet clover, 2 miles from a good town and a going creamery. This farm is rented for this year for share rent. I wish to turn it into a dairy, hog and poultry farm March 1, 1929. My plans are to start with 20 to 30 good cream producing cows and 20 good brood sows and 300 to 500 hens of the best laying strains. It will take 8 good horses to handle this farm and two good men or a middle-aged man that has two good boys, with plenty of inside help. I will put my farm up and furnish one-half the stock, feed and seed and implements. The other party to do all the work, board himself, pay for all help and board same. This is no place for small children as the school is 2 miles from the farm, they would have to cross a double railroad and go on a state road to town which would make it unsafe for small children. I will give full description of this place on request and location. Will go with an interested party any time for inspection. There are 3 good banks in the town and the right party can get financial assistance for a reasonable amount. There should be an all-year round income from this layout if the right party gets in. We can raise 100 pigs on alfalfa and separated milk and sell them as feeders as such pigs always sell above the market price. Or we can feed out as we see fit. There will always be alfalfa and prairie hay to sell and cream and eggs. I prefer a good honest Bohemian Catholic family who has his own help. There is a church in town. Star, Box 694.

McLarnin Socks Terris Out of Title Running

Irish Battler Hangs Knockout On Sidney In Opening Chapter

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—The lightweight division, almost canonized by the deeds of Gans, McAuliffe, Nelson, Lavigne, Welsh, Griffo and other immortals, had its modern idol today, the first since Benny Leonard passed into the limbo of pugilism "forgotten." He is a Lochinvar from out of the west, indeed—a young knight of the mailed fist, with the face of a cherub and the punch fo a pole-axe—Jimmy McLarnin by name, and poisonous by nature.

Sammy Mandell Next.

McLarnin qualified beyond further preamble for a title match with Lightweight champion Sammy Mandell by knocking Sid Terris frigid last night with a punch so fast as to be quicker than Terris' reaction. Sidney, hit on the chin with a left and a right in the first two minutes of play, simply stood transfixed for a dramatic second or two and then collapsed on his face to be counted out, that right hand, the greatest thing this writer has ever seen, was so fast that it defeated the message of the knockout to Terris' brain by at least a full second.

It was all over in 1 minute and 47 seconds, but a sell-out crowd of some 19,000 had seen what it wanted to see, the making of an overnight sensation who will pack them in and turn them away from now on until further notice. He is the new one-shot man, the latest killer and they devotedly love that kind.

Now We Have New Hero.

Did Dempsey say he was through What of it, forsooth? We have our Jimmy McLarnin and we expect to bear up bravely with the situation until a better man turns up, which may not be soon.

Color? Why you just can't help but like him with that puzzled innocent pan and the harp of Ireland on his green bathrobe.

Tough? Well he took a few sharp ones from Terris during the brief interval of the bout and didn't even look disturbed.

Belongs to All America.

And so was the pr.de of the west, for that matter. The west no longer owns him, in toto. He belongs to all America now and if you don't think so, you should have been there to see the muggs rush forward to harangue the press row in maudlin glee, while impromptu educators stood up to re-enact the knockout just as though they had seen it.

I, for one, don't think they did. It was like the old shell game all over again; the hand really was quicker than the eye.

The result of the bout came as a brutal shock to the gamblers who early in the week had made Terris an 8 to 5 favorite. He closed still in favor at 6 to 5.

And Jimmy Showed 'Em.

For some reason, the boys just wouldn't believe those McLarnin knockouts of Kaplan, Fields and Sangor, nor his defeats of LaBarba, Villa, Wallace and others. They had to be shown. But no more. You could tell them today that McLarnin knocked out Tunney and you wouldn't get a laugh.

Thus, the matter of McLarnin versus Mandell at last has come to a showdown. Mandell, a right good fighter in any man's league, has been outwaiting the situation in order to get his price. He will get it now, for the fight can't miss being one of the big shots of the season.

No. 3 For Sidney.

It was the third knockout of Terris' career and the only one that really means all the term implies. He folded up and vainly claimed a foul in 1925 from Kid Wagner's body punches, but since then his record has been clean. In fact, a lot of the intelligentsia thought he was the greatest lightweight in the profession. Well, maybe he was, at that. All I know is that he isn't.

Both boys weighed in at 133½ pounds at 2 o'clock, well below the class limit. This was the first of McLarnin's surprises. He turned out to be full of them.

Started Cautiously.

They started very carefully, Terris wearing an extremely superior expression, while James did his best to look determined and succeeded only in looking very boyish. After fiddling for a half minute, Terris suddenly crossed a right to the head and the cloak and suit men thought it was great. The punch was a bit high or otherwise it would have done more than merely rock Jimmy backward.

Followed next a succession of Terris' lefts. He was bounding about in great glee and shot his straight left from all angles.

McLarnin attempted nothing flashy. He was concentrating on the problem of pinning Terris in a corner.

Sid's Terrible M'stake.

Sidney decided that was not for him and began circling to the right. Half through this maneuver he decided to double back. That was the end.

McLarnin whipped over a left hook to the chin and with the same motion he scored with that right.

"That hurt you, Sidney," was the thought running through the writer's mind as he observed the unique spectacle of Terris standing still, for once. The clocked ticked a second and Terris continued to stand as one in a trance. It ticked another and he was gone—flat on his face out.

Panthers-Tigers Clash Wednesday

CRETE, Neb., Feb. 25—The Doane-York basketball game, booked for last night at York, was put over until next week because of inability to obtain the desired officials.

The Panthers and Tigers expect to tangle next Wednesday. The game is booked for York, but may be changed to Hastings or Lincoln becaues of the small size of the York gymnasium.

Ward Haylett's young son, who has been dangerously ill with pneumonia, is now reported on the way to recovery. Haylett is Doane college coach.

Benson Smothers Cathedral Quint

Benson high of Omaha had little difficulty in swamping the Cathedral five on the Ag college court last night, 31 to 7. The Omaha quintet jumped into the lead early in the first quarter and held Cathedral to one lone tally from the field during the first half, the period ending 22 to 4.

Wild passing and inability to hit the hoop cost the game for the Lincoln team, while Coach "Ernie" Adams' five staged a fast floor game and sank counters with regularity. Armentrout, Benson forward, was high scorer of the game with 14 points, while Peterson, tall center, was a close second with twelve counters, all coming from field goals. The score:

HUSKERS SMASH KANSAS STREAK

Nebraska Wins Thriller From Jayhawkers By Score of 32-28.

SOONERS HERE TONIGHT.

The University of Oklahoma basketball five, Missouri Valley champions, will appear at the coliseum tonight, meeting the Cornhuskers. The game is billed for 8:15 p. m., being preceded by the Iowa-Nebraska wrestling meet at 7 o'clock.

BY GREGG MCBRIDE.

A fighting bunch of Cornhuskers picked a copious handful of feathers out of the grand old Jayhawk Friday night when Coach Charley Black's Nebraska basketball five outfought and outscored Kansas, 32 to 28, in a thrilling cage battle at the university coliseum.

It was the first time in many moons that Nebraska basketeers have taken Kansas' measure on Cornhusker soil, although on several opportunities Nebraska fives have been victorious at Lawrence.

The game was one of those exciting tilts which keeps the crowd continually in an uproar. The two quintets alternated the lead throughout the contest, no team at one time having more than a six-point advantage, with the margin generally being one or two points.

Grace Rings the Bell.

The basket eye of Harvey Grace and the scrapping qualities of Guards Holm and Krall factored materially in the Cornhusker victory. Grace broke into the game late in the first half and at once registered a pair of baskets. His three field goals in the second period came at opportune moments, two early in the half giving Nebraska the lead and the third breaking a 25-25 deadlock to send the Huskers into a lead which they never relinquished.

Holm and Krall were all over the back court during the last period. The Kansas front line-out-sized the Nebraska duo, but the pair proved an efficient pair of ball-hawks during the last half.

A pair of free throws and side basket by Brown sent the Huskers off to a four-point lead at the start of the game. Thomson scored for Kansas, but Brown and Elliott were loose to stretch the Nebraska lead to six points. The Jayhawkers then set to work cutting down the margin and the first half closed with Kansas holding a 17-16 lead.

Red Hot Second Half.

The second period was a sensational battle. Grace hooked a one-handed effort in to give Nebraska the advantage, but Thomson's long toss and Newland's free throw swung the ball in favor of Kansas.

Othmer scored from the foul line and Grace once more sent the Huskers ahead with a high arched shot from the sidelines.

The two teams then exchanged the lead until, with the period half gone, the score reading 25-25, Grace got loose for a set-up which sent Nebraska again in the lead. "Jug" Brown scored from the floor and Krall added another point via the charity route.

Hill and Thomson combined to bring the score 28-30, but Holm's high arched effort from the sidelines swished through the netting to put the game on ice, 32-28. The score:

RATES PIRATES AS CHIEF RIVAL

Manager of Cubs Figures Likely Give Tough Argument.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25—(AP)—While his boys are unkinking at Catalina Island, Manager Joe McCarthy of the Cubs is looking over, on paper, the teams he must beat during the regular National league season. As he views it today, the Pittsburgh Pirates will be the club the Cubs must conquer if they hope to win the 1928 pennant.

McCarthy believes that the Pirates have the baseball timber, but he thinks it possible that the drubbing they took from the Yankees in the world series may have affected their morale.

Cub flingers are beginning to cut loose with a bit of steam as the island practices speed up, and by Monday McCarthy thinks they will be able to offer a lot of twisters for the second squad, now enroute.

Catchers Catch On Quickly to Jai Alai

BY AL DEMAREE.

Jai Alai seems to have taken quie a hold on the American public. Cuban ball players first brought it back from Cuba—players like Mike Gonzales, Adolpho Luque, Marsans, Alameda, Palmero.

Although it is a fast game, the best players are not developed until they are about 35 years old.

The Jai Alai players will lay you a 100-to-1 that you can't put the ball in the cesta and hit the wall with it, but Gabby Martinet learned the game pretty fast, and they said he could become a pretty good professional at it.

Mike Gonzales and Ernie Krueger, former Brooklyn catcher, also learned the game easily; so it apparently comes easiest to catchers.

AUBURN DRIVER FILES PROTEST

Morton Declares Stutz Cars Not Entitled to Credit for Record.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 25—(AP)—The American Automobile asociation had before it today a protest filed by Wade Morton, automobile race driver of Auburn, Ind. against the Stutz cars that competed against him in a stock car race here Thursday. The Stutz cars in this race exceeded the speed record of 104.34 miles per hour, established by Morton in an Auburn speedster several days ago.

Morton's complaint charged that the Stutz machines, driven by Gil Anderson, Indianapolis, who averaged 106.52 miles an hour, and Tom Rooney, Chicago, who averaged 105.54 miles an hour, were not strictly stock cars and that they were permitted to run with muffler cutouts open.

Lockhart Back on Job.

Frank Lockhart, nationally known driver of Indianapolis, who was injured when his tiny Stutz Blackhawk special ran into the ocean Wednesday, made the statement from his hospital bed that just as soon as he had fully recovered from his injuries and his car can be rebuilt he will make another attempt to break the world's speed record here.

Captain Malcolm Campbell of England, with his Napier Bluebird Special, in which he set a new record of 206.9 miles an hour, expects to leave Sunday for New York and will sail for home next Thursday.

Bambino In Fine Fettle

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—Babe Ruth, training camp bound today with Buster Gehrig and three other members of the New York Yankees, is in first-class physical condition for his campaign to set a new home run record Measurements show that Ruth weighs only 216 pounds, two pounds lighter than last year, and measures only 37½ inches around the waist, as compared to 39 inches last season and 42 inches in 1926.

Nearly a hundred Yankee fans and a band were on hand when the advance guard of the world's champions left last night for St. Petersburg, Fla. The first workout will be held Monday.

Death Counts "Ten" Over Noted Fighter

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—William Michael (Willie) Fitzgerald, who in his 13 years in the ring fought all the top-notchers in the lightweight class, died last night in the mailing room of the Brooklyn paper where he was employed. He was 47 years old. Among some of the more noted ring battles of the old Irish lightweight are his bout with Freddie Welsh in Philadelphia in 1907 and his two no-decision contests with Leach Cross in New York in 1908. He fought his last fight in 1912.

LINCOLN AHEAD IN EXTRA PERIOD

Red and Black Crew Wins Close One From St. Joseph Central.

The Lincoln high basket tossers nosed out a strong St. Joseph Central quintet, 24 to 20, in a contest played on the Irving junior high court Friday evening. After Lincoln had held a 9 to 7 advantage at the half, the St. Joseph aggregation came back strong in the remaining periods, knotting the score at 20 to 20. In a three-minute extra period session, the Brownies sank two field goals, cinching victory.

The contest was a thriller from start to finish, both teams presenting a fast brand of basketball. Lincoln started to make it a long evening for the St. Joseph team, baskets by Wittstruck and Batty giving the Red and Black a 5 to 1 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Central Spurts Ahead.

The St. Joseph quintet began finding the basket in the second period, however, Stuber registering two field goals and Good turning in an under-basket shot to cut the Lincoln lead down to 9 to 7.

The third quarter found the St. Joseph fi vehitting the hoop from all angles of the floor. Captain Good counted eight points for his team in short order, the score at one time standing 17 to 10 in Central's favor. Trott and Grossman finally located the basket for the Lincoln outfit, bringing the score up to 18 to 15.

At the start of the fourth quarter, Good again connected with a field goal, but Trott saved the Red and Black when he registered five points in the last four minutes of play, the game ending 20 to 20.

Lincoln Clinches Victory.

In the extra period, after Lincoln had missed a number of set-up shots, Batty sank the winning goal with a shot from the foul line. Grossman collected an under-basket shot in the last minute of play to put the game on ice.

Captain Good of St. Joseph Central was the high point man of the tussle, registering five field goals and two gift shots for a total of 12 points. Trott of the victors and Stuber of St. Joseph were next in line with eight points apiece. Grossman and Batty played outstanding floor games for Lincoln.

Lincoln high will tackle Omaha South tonight in a contest played on the Irving junior high court starting at 7:30. The Lincoln reserves finish their season playing the Cathedral high aggregation in a curtain-raiser to the main event beginning at 6:15. Score of the Lincoln-St. Joseph game:

Reserves Turn Back Aggies.

The Lincoln reserves trounced the Aggie high basket artists, 26 to 17, in a preliminary event to the Lincoln-St. Joseph contest. The victory cost Aggie high the Greater Lincoln league title, provided University Place defeats Wesleyan Prep.

The Red and Black reserves went on a scoring rampage the first quarter scoring five points in the first minute of play and rolling up a 14 to 1 score at the end of the opening period. The second quarter was not so spectacular, the first half ending 16 to 4.

The third canto was fought on fairly even terms, each team scoring five points, but in the last quarter, after Coach Overman had substituted a new Lincoln quintet, the Aggie hoopsters made a desperate rally, but could not overcome the large advantage of the Lincoln crew.

George, leading scorer in the Greater Lincoln league, was high point man of the tussle with nine points, while Masterson of the Lincoln reserves was nevt in line with seven points. The score:

PILOT ATHLETICS SWEET ON ROOKIE

Connie Mack Hands Out Praise to Orwoll, ex-Brewer.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25—(AP)—Ossie Orwoll, who came to the Philadelphia Athletics from Milwaukee, is the most graceful player to make the big leagues since Larry Lajoie hung up his spikes, in the opinion of Manager Connie Mack.

This statement came from the lanky pilot of the A's today from their training quarters in Fort Myers, Fla. In speed, grace and natural ability, Mack said the blond athlete was living up to all the advance notitces that preceded him out of the west and that if he was not one of the sensations of the coming American league campaign he would be surprised.

Orwoll had his first workout with the squad yesterday, taking a 15-minute turn in the box and warming-up drills on the side lines. Mack has not decided whether he will use him as a pitcher or fielder.

Walking, running and batting practice continues to constitute most of the conditioning programs of the Phillies at Winter Haven, Fla. Manager Shotton reports his men nearly ready to get down to real practice.

Taverner Pronounced O. K.

DETROIT, Feb. 25—(AP)—Jackie Tavener, diminutive shortstop of the Detroit Tigers, who it was feared would be unable to play ball this year owing to an injured finger on his throwing hand, will be back in the lineup at the start of the season, Manager Moriarty has announced.

Moriarty, at the club's training camp in San Antonio, Tex., said the finger, which was nearly severed in an accident and then stiffened after healing, has returned to its normal condition.

Because of the belief that Tavener would no longer be able to play major league baseball, Detroit signed "Chick" Galloway, former shortstop of the Philadelphia Athletics. Galloway will be retained for utility infield work.

Indications are that George Dauss, veteran relief pitcher, who was ill during most of last season, will be unable to join the team this season.

The Sportlight

BY GRANTLAND RICE.

IT EVENS UP.

When the green gets in the grass, and the blue gets in the sky,
Then you'll soon pick up a slice, or you'll find a cuppy lie.
Though you may not like the snow, where a north wind sweeps the land,
Yet they lead to no missed putts, nor to heel prints in the sand.

THE MAKE OR BREAK FOR DELANEY.

This next week is to decide the fate of one of the most interesting figures the ring has even sent into action.

His name is Jack Delaney. One part of his record shows a walloping right hand that stopped Berlenbach, Tiger Flowers, Bud Gorman in two rounds, Sully Montgomery in one, others almost abruptly. Another part of his record shows moth-eaten work against Maloney, Risko and one or two more.

Delaney stands as a stylist, a master of form, a good boxer with a killing right. But just when he seemed to be on his way to the top he has always managed to slip back into the pack again. He has caught the extended favor of the crowd more than once and after losing this favor more than once he has won it back again.

If this same Delaney is able to whip Tom Heeney by a wide margin he would be the biggest card Rickard could possibly throw into action against Tunney, for with Delaney in the ring there is always the chance his right fist might find the target.

But Delaney has Heeney to account for before he can look to the next target. And no one yet has been able to crowd Heeney off the road. He isn't fancy, but he's smart, game and durable and no half-hearted assault is going to evict him.

Delaney at his best can whip Heeney, but not the Delaney against Risko, Uzcudun, Maloney or Renault.

TODAY'S GOLF LESSON.

"The average golfer," says Willie Kline, the keen young pro now at La Gorce, Miami Beach, "stands too far away from the ball on all iron play, specially when using a mashie and mashie niblick. Watch the best pros and the best amateurs and see how closely they stand to the ball on any pitch. They are almost over it, only a trifle farther away than they would stand for a putt. In playing the ball too far, one is apt to fall forward or lean forward and this kills both direction and distance. The golf shot is from 'the inside out.' That is, the arc the blade of the club must follow. Play the ball closer in and hit through this type of arc. This also keeps the elbows from flying wide. It adds to compactness, which is the main part of all iron play, especially pitching to a green. It helps to keep the weight back and the hands closer to the body, where they belong. It may seem to be uncomfortable at the start, but it is a habit well worth building up."

Which is true from start to finish. It is a point Jim Barnes discussed some time ago, a point he considered the most vital part of mashie and mashie niblick play. The average golfer can stand eight or ten inches closer to the ball and still not be crowding it.

STARS BID FOR INDOOR CROWNS

Crack Athletes Compete In National A. A. U. Meet at Garden.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—Track stars from all parts of the country are entered in the national A. A. U. indoor championships in Madison Square Garden tonight, with 15 events down for competition. The list of performers includes many prospects for the American contingent in the forthcoming Olympics at Amsterdam.

The world's record breaking 1,000-yard run by Ray Conger, in winning over Lloyd Hahn at Kansas City last Saturday night, has installed Conger as favorite in the 1,000 yard championship. Conger's rivals will include Phil Edwards of New York university, Pinkie Sober, Sam Martin, Leo Larrivee of Chicago A. A., and Sid Robinson, the former Mississippi A. & M. star. The accented world's record for this event of 2:12 4-5, made by Hahn in winning the championship last year, may be broken.

Carr In Pole Vault.

Sabin Carr of Yale, the present national and intercollegiate pole vault champion, will attempt to better his own world mark of 13 feet, nine and one-half inches. One of his most dangerous opponents will be Charles McGinnis of the Chicago A. A., present Western conference indoor and outdoor pole vault champion, who is making his appearance here for the first time.

The west is sending on five of the country's best high jumpers in Harold Osborn, the world's record holder; Anton Burg, Western conference outdoor champion; Charles McGinnis, Western conference indoor champion; E. Norton of the Illinois A. C.; and Fait Elkins, the Nebraska Indian.

Locke Entered In 300.

Among the outstanding hurdlers to compete in the 70-yard high hurdle event will be George Guthrie, Illinois A. C.; Dan Kinsey, Chicago A. A. Olympic champion; Chick Werner, Illinois A. C.; W. S. Edwards, Yale; J. S. Collier, Brown university; L. S. Jadwin, Princeton, and S. Harrison Thomson, former Princeton and Oxford star.

In the 300-yard run, Lancelot Ross of Yale will be defending his championship against Fred Alderman, Illinois A. C.; Roland Locke, former University of Nebraska star; Jackson V. Scholz, Olympic 200 meters champion; Henry Russell, James Burgess, Eddie Hoctor, Bayes M. Norton, J. Fowler Scull and Charles H. Engle.
